Miss Lavan is billed as a dainty character change artiste, and easily sustains her billing, she presenting three quick changes last night that were both novel and entirely different, her second change, that from a Colonial dame to a French Grisette, was novel in the extreme, when the house lights, were extinguished and revealed the singer in light cast from many small electric bulbs attached to her parasol. Miss Lavan possesses a pleasing personality and will prove a favorite of the program for the week she performs here.

ay be supremely happy."

For many weeks preparations have been going on for a grand sale under the auspices of the Golden Circle Sewing Society, to be held on November 23, at some central location in the city, providing that a vacant store or hall can be procured. Many and various are the beautiful articles that have been made up for this sale. There will be fancy work of all kinds, and dolls by the millions; small, large and medium, and all hand dressed by members of the Golden Circle. The array of handbags that will be on sale is something to be spoken of in whispers, for they are so delicately shaded and fluffy and fairy-like, they might vanish if subject to harsh words or praise. There will be no question about their vanishing quickly from the sales ble when the sales day comes. There will also be a delicatessen table where-well, everybody knows what the Golden Circle Society's delicatessen table contains. Remember the date, November 23. The location will be announced later.
